

NOSFERATU

By Appa Apopolitarchopolis, a Gentle of An'Tir

A song to the tune of 'Hallelujah' by Leonard Cohen

I heard there was a haunted house
Where deathly things can be seen about
But you don't really care for horror, do you?
So as I stepped through that door alone
A figure rose up from his throne
His eyes were pale, his skin was like a statue

Nosferatu, Nosferatu
Nosferatu, Nosferatu

Before my wits I could collect
The creature bit into my neck
And my last living thought, my dear, was of you
For when I arose to breathe again
It was not life, but death profane
And with me through the pain was Nosferatu

When all was done, he wiped my brow
And said to me 'You are vampire now
And only living blood will sustain you'
So from his cup I drank and fed
'Now come my child, arise,' he said
'And speak your master's name' Oh, Nosferatu

Once a year or more had passed
I was allowed to go at last
So, with my cape and coffin, left to find you
Betrayal, though, I found instead
Your honeymoon, a newly-wed
And with you in your bed was Nosferatu

Nosferatu x4

To see you now, a tear I shed
You've changed so much, and I am dead
But clearly, loving monsters doesn't urk you
Then a feeling dark, and strange, and true
My needs have changed, and my taste has too
I'll drain the blood from you with Nosferatu
